SERVICES DURING COVID-19 HEALTH CRISIS
RESPONSIBILITIES AND RISKS FOR IN PERSON SERVICES

It is assumed that by conducting in person services you can increase your risk of exposure to COVID-19. This could also be increased should public transportation need to be used for your services. Please see the information below to help minimize exposure and understand your responsibilities.

- Only keep your appointment if you are symptom free and have not had direct exposure to a person who is sick or who has tested positive for COVID-19.
- An associate with All Stage Canine Development will take your temperature upon entry. If you have a temperature of 100 degrees Fahrenheit or higher, your appointment will be rescheduled.
- We will not charge you if you need to reschedule your appointment due to COVID-19 symptoms or potential exposure.
- We request you push your appointment out two weeks if you have been exposed. There will be no fees for last minute reschedules.
- Every person involved in training sessions will wear masks and/or face shields and will keep a CDC recommended distance of 6 feet apart.
- A personal assumption of risk is understood, and it is agreed not to hold All Stage Canine Development accountable should you be exposed in our training center or during a training session.
- As you are conducting in-person sessions with our staff, we request that you take personal precautions to limit your exposure between appointments.
- If you have a job that exposes you to COVID-19 positive patients, we ask that you advise us and we can adjust your training sessions or mandates accordingly to ensure everyone's safety.
- No refunds will be permitted due to gaps in training or temporary closures caused from COVID-19.
